

Using sound

Dear students,

Thank you for finding out about sound for me. I'm looking forward to hearing about what you learn. Since writing the last letter, I have realised that I have other questions that you might be able to help me with.

In my world we use sound in lots of different ways. The fire alarms say 'please leave the building' and our clocks read the time out to us. When we unwrap our food, the wrappers beep until they are put in the correct bin. Students hum; they hum all day long: high tunes and low tunes that make everyone smile. Grown-ups like to whistle; they whistle at work and they whistle in the car.

These are my questions: How do you use sound at home? How do you use loud, soft, high and low sounds? How does sound get to your ears?

I'm looking forward to finding out about sound. I hope you are too!

Have fun.

Yours sincerely,
